to the smallest sum. The entire receipts for consu million of dollars. We hope this inactivity in this branch of trade will continue at least for three months, so that the consumption of foreign dry goods may reduce the supply. It would be much better for all concerned, as prices at present rule ruinously low; and so long as the importations so largely exceed the demand for consumption, we cannot expect to see any improvement in the market.

It will be seen by this, that up to 1849, the net income cost has annually decreased. Since that time it has adranced, and the returns for 1851 will, without donbt, raise the per cent net income to a still higher point. The our impression that most of the railroad companies will resp a rich harvest from the traffic of 1851. The crops are likely to be most abundant, and the transportation of produce will, as a natural consequence, be large. The public have the means of travelling to a greater extent than ever before known in the history of railroads, and there is no doubt but that a larger amount of business will be done, during the approaching summer, in transporting passengers, than during the corresponding period in any previous year. This must have a favorable influence upon prices for railroad stocks generally, but more particularly upon the stock of those roads connecting important points. Holders of railroad securities have evidently tant points. Holders of railroad securities have evidently anticipated such an effect upon prices, as very little anxiety is exhibited to sell at current quotations.

The question in relation to the gauge of the Lak Shore road, from Buffalo to Erie, has been amicably settled. It will be built of the Ohio gauge, which is different both from the Eric and the Central line. will be an independent road, and will afford, on fair terms, accommodations to all connecting lines.
